Jeff Danker, Speaker

Jeff Danker, newly retired Pottawattamie County Sheriff, spoke to the Treynor Optimists Saturday morning. Jeff served 43 years working in various capacities- in the jail, court bailiff, road patrol duty, federal task force, investigations, and then as sheriff since 1992.

Jeff stated when he started they had a 43-bed jail that was at full capacity within a few years. The new jail, which is now 20 years old, is a 288-bed facility. Reutilizing space has allowed them to add 52 beds to the women's cell area. With added inmates, more money is needed to hire staff. This will most likely help the jail extend the need for five years for building another housing unit.

When Danker first became sheriff, there were 60 employees. Now there are over 200 with most being employed at the jail.

COVID fortunately has not been a huge issue. Arrested people are quarantined before being added to the jail population. Masks are worn by staff. There hasn't been a big uptick with crime.

Danker explained the process of Direct Supervision which is used in the jail. It took a mind shift with the staff to utilize, but it works well. Prisoners are classified through research of their history and then a cell/pod area is monitored by one in-person staff member which helps alleviate prisoner conflicts and makes for a safe environment. The staff member sits at a desk and is in constant contact with a supervisor electronically. Staff evaluation can result in an inmate going up/down in their classification. Violent people are not monitored in this way.

By law inmates are limited on the work they can do while in jail because the majority are there for pre-trial with a mixture of offenses.

Once there is a trial, inmates are convicted and go to prison OR are found not guilty. Inmates in prison actually have more personal freedoms than in jail and are assigned jobs.

Most in the jail are not convicted and are not to spend more than 1 year there, with some exceptions. He stated the average stay is one to two weeks. The initial appearance in court is done by video. Average weekend arrests can range from 5 to 35.

He spoke about the recent protests. Protesting is not a problem, but violence is. Jeff stated the group with firearms at the courthouse were there within their rights and had their permits. They were polite and there were no problems.

The protests in Omaha became violent. Danker said diverting traffic from Omaha to CB most likely reduced problems in CB. In addition to businesses and the courthouse being protected, there was significant protection of the life-size horse statue, which honors Officer Mark Burbridge, outside the Squirrel Cage Jail.

Danker expressed strong feelings about the push for anti-law enforcement, stating this area is very supportive of law enforcement. He said the police call Heartland Family Services to help with social worker issues when needed.

In his retirement he and his wife Gladys may travel and he will continue to enjoy his grandkids.

Thank you, Jeff Danker, for your many years of service to keep us all safe!

(Due to snowy roads, the scheduled speaker had to cancel.)
