Danny and Dan Kinsella Speak

Danny Kinsella, a sophomore at Treynor High School shared his 2nd place winning speech in the local Optimist Oratorical Contest. "Staying Optimistic in Challenging Times" was the theme students were to speak about. He spoke about Helen Kellar, Anne Frank, and Joan of Ark.

Danny's dad, Dan Kinsella, a community supporter, also spoke today about the Treynor Athletic Boosters. Dan and his wife Kari have a son and three daughters. Dan helps volunteer coach wrestling and soccer. He is employed by DeLoitte and practices risk management nationally and internationally.

Dan thanked the Optimists and this fantastic community that supports this district in so many ways. Dan attended school at Millard, and his wife was from Imogene and went to school at Shenandoah. They chose to live in Treynor because of the academics, athletics, farming and urban mix.

Several years ago the Athletic Boosters Club started asking questions about how to better raise money. At that time about $20,000 was coming in through concessions. With the leadership of Candace Gregory, Mike Pryor and Greg Tiarks, a 501(c)3 was created and a group started putting more structure to the organization. Kinsella also got involved as well as others. There is now a formula used to determine how much goes to each of the sports programs and donations can be tax write offs. A small endowment has been started with the hopes that it will grow. 5 percent will be given each year and the corpus will stay intact.

There are five ways now that money is earned by the Treynor Athletic Boosters:

1. Memberships. They are working to improve benefits and to reach out to graduates.

2. The Golf Outing and it continues to grow.

3. Concessions. They are working to improve the many details of this.

4. Shirts/Christmas orders and miscellaneous.

5. The Bash – This annual light hearted event will be held April 2 and allows attendees to hear from coaches, develop comradery and supports the 21 programs, including cheer and dance. Only a few seats are left. The Bash nets $50,000.

The school budgets for the basics, but it is a capped budget. In totality, the Treynor Athletic Boosters Club now nets $75,000 per year for the sports programs to provide for advantage and opportunity for coaches and athletes. The Booster Club doesn't pay for tournaments. Individual sports groups may do extra fundraising on their own as well.

As a parent, Dan asked, "Are we spoiling the kids?" He stated how it was for most of us adults when we were youngsters. He also explained that sports are increasing at an exponential rate, and we want kids to be able to develop skills for life and coaches truly have a significant influence.

Dan shared a great story about a local student this year who didn't have great ability, but worked hard at wrestling and kept at it. The kids are encouraged to support all the others and when this student did win a match at the end of the season, he said the kids cheered so hard you would have thought the student had won the Super Bowl. He said it's not about winning and losing, but being there for each other.

Kinsella also discussed potential ideas for the Boosters for the future, stating he feels the best is yet to come. He also discussed that sports are changing dramatically to be more like the growing European Academy style (clubs). Like it or not, he stated it is changing by the minute, and it seems to be if students do not do that, they can't have as much success and unfortunately it does take away from school allegiance. He stated that he attended a youth wrestling tournament recently and saw kids doing moves he didn't learn until he was a senior in college.

We enjoyed your talks, Kinsellas!

Next week's speaker will be Cadence Quick with her 1st place Optimist Oratorical Speech and Mike Holton, City Manager

All are welcome!
